Mr. Page Has Not Answered! Will He?

On June 15, 1916, the Ludlow Tribune, having received from some source an intimation that Senator Page desired a re-election, put some printed questions squarely up to the Senator. It asked:

"What constructive measure, if any, have you proposed, stood behind, and been able to push to a successful issue in the Senate during the eight years' service in that honorable body?"

The People of Vermont Are Waiting For Senator Page's Answer

"Did you really vote against the rural credits bill (the measure President Wilson, in signing, characterized as "immensely beneficial to the farmers of the country") and the bill looking to the protection of the sources of water power in these United States? And if so will you tell your constituents why?"

The People of Vermont Are Waiting For Senator Page's Answer

To the Tribune's queries many more might be added:

Have you, Senator Page, at any time since you were elected to the Senate favored any measure that was advocated by the farmers of the country?

The Farmers of Vermont Are Especially Interested in Knowing Your Answer. Will You Answer?

Did you, Senator Page, on June 12, 1911, vote against the bill providing for the popular election of United States Senators?

You are on record as having cast such vote. Will you verify your position then by answering in the affirmative now? And how do you reconcile this fact with seeking an election under a law you opposed?

On May 31, 1912, the eight-hour bill, a labor measure, was up for vote in the Senate. Senator Page is on record as having voted against this measure.

Will You, Senator Page, Stand Before the Laboring Men of Vermont and Explain Why You Voted Against The Interests of the Men Who Toil?

What has been your position, Senator Page, on equal suffrage for women of the country?

The Women of Vermont Are Interested, and Demand Your Reply, Senator Page

Thousands of people in Vermont desire to know what Senator Page has stood for and what he has created in the way of progressive constructive legislation the eight years he has been a senator.

Will Mr. Page Answer?

Pat's Quick Retort.
Parson Lewis, who was not averse to an occasional toddy, hired an Irishman to clean out his cellar one morning. Paddy started in with a will and found, among the other rubbish, a number of empty bottles. He carefully examined each bottle by holding it to the light.

The minister, looking down to see how Paddy was getting along with the work, saw him looking through the bottles and called out:

"They are all dead ones."

"Indeed, now, are they, sir?" replied Paddy. "Well, there's one good thing about it—they all had the minister with them when they died."
